Review of the Scotch Volunteers by Queen

On the 7th instant, Queen Victoria viewed the Scotch Volunteers from Holyrood Palace. From the London Times's re port we condense the following:

viewed the Scotch Volunteers from Holyrood Palace. From the London Times's report we condense the following:

St. Margaret's-station was, as usual, neatly fitted up for the Queen's arrival, with carpet of the green Stnart tartan and a mat of heather, on which to alight on Scottish ground, the sides of the staircase and awning being decorated with flowers.

It is believed that the volunteers under arms considerably exceeded the returns previously made, and numbered from 21,000 to 22,000 men, beside from 2,000 to 2,000 that were present as spectators.

Her Majesty left Holyrood at half-past three o'clock, attended by a most brilliant retinue. The Ducheess of Kent, at present residing at Crammond-house, occupied the carriage with Her Majesty, along with the Princes Alice and Prince Arthur. The Prince Consort and the Duke of Buccleuch rode on either side of the carriage.

Behind the saluting flag was a splendidlydecorated gallery, containing about 4,000 spectators; but it was upon the hills opposite that the great concourse took place. The vast and varied gathering could not be estimated at less than 200,000 persons. There were about 150 different corps on the ground, marshaled into thirty-five battallons—one of mounted rifles, six of artillery, one of engineers and twenty-seven of rifles.

The marching past of this immense body of volunteers occupied exactly an hour and twenty minutes, having commenced at four o'clock. Toward the close and throughout the passing of the second division the clouds of dust continued to increase, and to a considerable extent marred the beauty of the display. The marching past being concluded, a lengthened pause took place, during which the whole line was put in order to advance.
At length General Wetherall gave the command, which was repeated by the commanders throughout the line, and communicated still more instantancously by the sound of the bugle. The whole army then simultaneously moved forward until the bugle called a halt. The officers then saluted with their several minutes. At a quarter Her Majesty left the ground.

MISERABLE PASSIMONY OF A TITLED MIL-LIONAIRE. - The London correspondent of the

New York Times writes:

The other day there was a Review or Inspection at Windsor, which the Queen graced with her presence. Among the gratified spectations was Lord Overstone, the millionaire. To the astonishment of a regiment of volunteers, his Lordship asked them all to dine with him at the Portland Barracks a few days afterward. A large number of them went. They found a long table, and upon it plates containing small portions of cold beef and mutton alternately set, with a tumbler for every mess of four men, and a few lettuces, by way of salad, placed down the center of the table. Small beer and porter in wooden "stoups" completed the entertainment. The majority went away in disgust at this millionaire display; about fifty remained to lunch, and agreed, as a liberal recognition, to send Lord Overstone twelve penny postage stamps each. On the whole transaction his lordship is a gainer. This nobleman is well known for instances of generous profusion of this kind. His fortune is something fabulous; but he will not allow his serva uts meat for supper, and gives them bread and cheese. New York Times writes:

THE RAGE IN PARIS FOR RESEMBLING THE EMPEROR.—A gossiping writer in the Liver-pool Albion has the following;

And apropos of noses, it is a prominent feature in the physical and psychological conformation of French society that every Frenchman, certainly every French func-tionary, tries to cast his countenance in the Frenchman, certainly every French functionary, tries to cast his countenance in the mold of the present Bonapartean visage. And wonderful is the goodness of the facsimiles of so bad an original. What with the imperial taft under the goat-like chin, the forked mustache, the shorn mahogany colored jaws, with the stubbles of blue whiskers, as if half blown out with gunpowder, the semi-shut crocodile eyes, leaden, yet glimmering, like rose diamonds, and the stare of mingled furtiveness and point blank audmity, there is such a family likeness among the middle-aged male population, that really every third man you meet might claim cousinhood to the Emperor, and with much greater reason on the face of it than the Emperor claims to be nephew to his uncle. The imitative capacity of the simeous French has always been remarkable, but in this case it is astunishing.

CHANGES OF A NATION'S RATE.-Lady Charlotte Pepys, in her recently-published book of travel, says:

We left Strasburg early, and would gladly bave visited Colmar, which has also a beautiful cathedral. And here it was that a curious record of the chances and changes of the nations's fate was lately discovered. In preparing to color with distemper, for some fete, the refectory of the Hotel de Ville, it was necessary to pull down the paper-hangings. These were several, and had followed each other as follows: Firstly, upon the plaister, a paper representing armor, surbook of travel, says: each other as follows: Firstly, upon the plaister, a paper representing armor, surmounted by the Phrygian cap of the Revolution; secondly, over this a green paper, with gold bees; thirdly, a royal blue, dotted with fleur-de-lis; fourthly, another blue paper, with the Gallic cock of 1830; fifthly, an ordinary insignificant modern paper. I suppose the present one will be the "busy, busy bee."

A NEW YORK MORMON.—A singular case was brought before the Police Court at Albany, New York, on Monday. A Mrs. Catherine Gib made complaint against one Elizabeth Schell for assault, which, it appeard, grew out of a jealousy on the part of Mrs. G., who ordered Elizabeth from the house, but instead of going she attempted to put N s. G. out of doors. On investigation by the magistrate it appeared that, although Mr. Gib had lived with his wife for twelve years, and had six children by her, they had only actually been married a few months, and the children were all illegitimate. It also turned out that, for the last six years, Gib had also been living with Elizabeth, by whom he had four children—thus giving him a family of ten illegitimate children. The Court thought, under such discumstances, it had no power to interfere.

Gammaldi's Wips .- The daughter of Coun Gannald's Wife.—The daughter of Count Raimond, who accepted the hand of Garibald, but from whom he separated himself immediately after the performance of the nuptial ceremony, on receipt of a letter informing him that she was about giving birth to a child by a previous lover, is now residing in Freiburg, in Switzerland, and persists in calling herself Madame Garibaldi.

THE WORLD'S WANT OF CHARITY.—If there is any thing exciety is in want of, if there is one which, above all others, the human heart would realize in its homes of hopelessness and gloom, any thing we all ask for in our moments of sorrow, its human charity—best attribute of our nature, the principle of angels, the mission of a Savior.

Reception of the Prince of Walon at Que-bec-Grand and General Illumination of that City-

Accounts by mail from Quebec thus refer to the reception of the Prince in that city: Among the features along the route of the procession was a number of children, posted on the vacant space near Prescott Gate, sing-ing God Save like Queen, and a number or sewing and other machines set in motion on the top of the Mechanics' Arch in St. John-sewing and other machines set in motion on the top of the Mechanics' Arch in St. Johnstreet. In the evening the illumination was general, although a gentle rain was failing.

The quantity of transparencies put up was really extraordinary. There are scores of Queens, Prince Consorts by the dozen, and of Prince of Wales no end. Then there are crowns, and stars, and V. R.s. and V. A.s. without number. In the gas jet line, too, the preparations have been extensive, and the display correspondingly effective. Japanese lanterns are numerous, but not special favorites, wax candles in the window-panes being preferred. Then the mottoes, which are brought out on the windows, are various. The Prince is bid welcome a thousand times, and he is oftener called Prince de Galles than designated by his English title. The public offices are, perhaps, the most brilliantly lit up of any. In front of the Finance Minister's there is a ship.

In front of the Board of Works office some brilliant stars are conspicuous. The old Chateau St. Louis is radiant. The Attorney-General's offices are covered with lamps and transparencies, but the finest display of any is made before the Receiver-General's. A huge inscription in the front tells that it was the residence of his Royal Highness, the late Duke of Kent, 1793, and the space between the building and the street is made a fairy bower, by means of colored lamps and evergreens; next the public offices, the Roman Catholic edifices deserve notice. The cathedral windows are illuminated by lamps arranged in the form of crosses. The convents and Archishop's Palace all announce Honneur an Prince in flaming characters, but the display is not confined to the stately buildings. In every by-street the houses are lit up, and even though it be by sticking a bill on a window was a supplementation. alsplay is not connect to the state youthings. In every by-street the houses are lit up, and even though it be by sticking a bill on a window-pane with a lamp behind it. The French population as well as the Iriah seem to desire to testify their content with the institutions they possess. The illumination exceeds that of any place the Prince has yet wisited.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM HENRY A. WISI on Disunion .- Ex-Governor Wise recently wrote as follows to the Young Men's Breckinridge Association in Memphis, Tenn.:

There is no man I would meet with more pleasure than the Hon. William L. Yancey, of Alabama. I am a lover of "the union of these States," and it is upon the efforts of honest, bold and gifted leaders like him that it must depend for its defense and perpetuity. It can't be maintained by a service submission of a contraction of the cont it must depend for its defense and perpetuity. It can't be maintained by a service submission of any one section to any attempt at domination by another section. And it is cowardly and base now to conceal the fact that slave-holders in the South are called upon to maintain their self-respect, as well as their rights of persons and property. Many may be restrained by their caution from resorting to decisive measures, but the few brave men who have purpose and will, and a sense of honor, will see, and feel, and act upon the wisdom that decisive measures, in vital and extreme cases, forbid and repel aggression and revolution; while indecisive measures, a patch-work of compromise and concession, but invite wrong and insuit, and at last will force men to violent resistance when it will be too late to arrest revolution. When the conservative element in the North sees that there are yet men in the South who can force revolution rather than be degraded in the Union, then the Union itself will be restored in its true brotherhood. Have we purpose, will, sense of honor sufficient to arrest revolution? If we have, Breckinridge and Lane will be elected. If not, God spare me the sight of the consequences!

THEOLOGICAL MANIACS—ECCENTRICITY OF GEOFFROY VALLEE.—Under the head of "Theological Madmen," a French writer seems inclined to place the authors of those devotional works, with singularly practical titles, which were so common in the times of the Puritans, of which Baxter's Hooks and Eyes for Believers Breeches is a familiar example; and he gives the titles of two French with a secretarily. works of the same class, which are certainly not less racy and characteristic, and at the same time are less generally known, La Seringue Spirituelle pour les unes constipees, en devotion and La Tabatiere Spirituelle pour fair elernuer les aues devotes. A certain Geoffroy Vallee showed his insanity in a Geoffroy Vallee showed his insantly in a manner very unusual in the age in which he lived, by having a shirt for every day in the year, and by always sending his linen to be washed in Flanders, in a spring famous for the limpidity of its water. As if this were not enough, he must needs write an incoherent book on theology, which was burned, together with its author, on February 9, 1574. Descending to the present century, we find together with its author, on February 3, 104. Descending to the present century, we find one J. A. Soubira, who found a mysterious and irresistible attraction in the number 600, and published, among other works, a pamphlet having this number for its sole title, consisting of eighteen stanzas, of five lines each, the favorite number being repeated at the end of each line.

NARROW ESCAPE OF THE GREAT WHERRY MAN.—Mr. Martin, who is rowing from Boston to New York, had an exciting accident at Eastham, the other afternoon. Large numbers of persons being anxious to see him afloat, he launched his wherry, although the wind was blowing a gale and the serf was running very high. He shot out on the waves in fine style, his boat riding like a bird. On returning to the shore, one of the heavy rollers struck him astern, and capsized him in a twinkling. Coming to the surface, he clung to the boat, and righted it, but in endeavoring to regain his seat, it again capsized. Much anxiety was felt by the spectators, who were unable to render any assistance, owing to his distance from shore, and the rapid under-tow on the beach. By clinging to the wherry, he was carried to and fro, until he at last touched the sand, when he was brought ashore, much exhausted, with his face slightly braised. The wherry sustained no damage, and the oars were secured. A purse was immediately made up for him by those who had witnessed his perilous adventure.

perilous adventure. MURDERRER SENTENCED — A HARDEWED CRIMINAL.—James Miller, convicted of the murder of Henry Guerker, by drowning him in Cohocksink Creek, was sentenced to death in the Philadelphia Court, on Saturday last, Miller's accomplice in the cruel murder, George W. Rhefl, alias Eddis, was convicted of murder in the second degree, and sentenced to twelve years at hard labor in the nententiarty.

and sentenced to twelve years at hard labor in the penitentiary.

The prisoner showed but little emotion, and after taking his seat, turned to his companion, Rheil, and laughed. Both Miller and Rheil are young men. The former followed the sea shortly before his arrest. The offense for which he is to suffer the death penalty, was committed on the night of the 21st of January last. Henry Guerker, the victim, was followed from a lager-beer saloon to the Cobockaink Creek, where he was attacked, robbed of his watch, and pushed into the creek.

HARVESTING IN THE NORTH BY MOON Harvering in the North by Moon-tiont.—A recent private letter from Wis-consin cays; "The weather here is very fine and cool. Harvesting will be very nearly, completed this week. The heavy crop has drawn to the harvest fields men, women and children; doctors, lawyers, and ministers. The country villages have been deserted. Laboring by mooningth has been one of the interesting features peguliar to this harvest."

The Great Thirty- we-Mile Race-Time, Two Hours and Sixteen Minutes-W derful Bottom of the Winning Horse The Leavenworth (K. T.) Dispatch of the 20th inst., savs:

The Leavenworth (K. T.) Dispatch of the 20th inst., says:

We mentioned, some few weeks ago, that a race had been agreed upon by Mesars. Wm. Tholen and Jep. Rice, of this city, between horses owned by each, to be run from here to Lawrence, a distance of thirty-two miles. The stakes between these gentlemen were the horses, but outsiders backed their opinions with a bet of $200. It was afterward agreed to test the relative bottom of the horses upon the St. Joseph race-track, in a race of thirty-two miles.

At two o'clock, precisely, the race began. But comparatively, little betting was done, the crowd generally being ignorant of the merits of either horse, though the delegation from Leavenworth backed their respective opinions quite freely with the "rhino."

At the start, Rice's horse took the lead for a few hundred yards, which he maintained up to the fifteenth mile, when Tholen's horse flew the track and manifested signs of weariness. He was sponged and revived by the use of liquor, but before he took the track again, the steady but cautious lope of the other borse had placed him full a mile in advance. They maintained this position, each stopping occasionally to be sponged, until the twenty-eighth mile, when Tholen's animal gave out, and could go no further. Rice's horse had it now all his own way, ye'he showed no signs of weariness, and still kept up his steady gallop. It was now determined to put his powers of endurance to the utmost test, by making him run the last half mile against a fresh horse, in which trial he again came out victorious, beating his new competitor easily.

his new competitor easily.

About seven or eight hundred dollars changed hands. Mr. Rice wins nothing but the other horse, his object not having been to make money on the race, but only to show the bottom of his horse.

A Southern Tartarus A Marvelous Cave in Mississippi. A female correspondent of an Eastern journal writes from Shubuta, Miss., of a wonderful cave near there, as follows:

journal writes from Shnbuta, Miss., of a. wonderful cave near there, as follows:

This cave is six miles long, extending from Eucetta Greek, where we entered, to Chick-asaba River. At the river there are air-holes, where the air rushes in with a sound like thunder. Mr. D. took a rope with him and went to the distance of a mile. He says that there are shelves formed in the rock in the cave shaped like a dog. As the light is held near it long, it seems covered with dismonds. There are several snakes formed in the rock that are enough to seare any one, they look so natural.

The cave is from ten to fifteen feet wide, and is between fifty and seventy-five feet high in some of the places, and so dark that you can't see a foot before you. On one side it is rocky, muddy, and so slippery that you are obliged to hold on to the rocks on the side to keep from falling. On the other, there is a beautiful branch running through it.

At the top of the cavern it is all hard rock, and little long rocks, like fingers, hang down, through these the water drops slowly and constantly. As the light is carried in, the rocks sparkle like millions of diamonds. It is intensely cold within the cave, and, if the hand be placed on the rocks they feel like fee to the touch. If any one should happen to lose their light in there they would never get out. Some of the party went very far in, and, returning, told us that it was their opinion that there was a human body in there, from the suffocating smell. They would have stopped to look for it, but the torches were fast wasting away.

Financial Swindling-The Mode of Estab-lishing "Wild Cat" Banks in the North-

The Chicago (III.) correspondent of the New York Evening Post, tells this financial old Crossus goes to a Wali-street broker with $10,000 in gold. The broker buya $50,000 worth of State stocks, which Crossus deposits with the Auditor of Wisconsin, who thereupon signs bank-bills to the amount of $45,000. Crossus pays the broker $40,000 in this currency, according to a previous agreement, pays $500 for printing his bills, and $4,500 in currency to loan at twelve per the broker $40,000 in currency to loan at twelve per the broker $40,000 in currency to loan at twelve per the broker $40,000 in currency to loan at twelve per the broker $40,000 in currency to loan at twelve per the broker $40,000 in currency to loan at twelve per the broker $40,000 in currency to loan at twelve per the state of the ment, pays $500 for printing his bills, and $4,500 in currency to loan at twelve persent. The bank is located away up by the North Pole, and never a bill is presented for redemption. Crossus draws interest at six per cent. on $50,000, amounting to $3,000 every year. Then, if, in order to make a clean thing of it, he converts the $4,500 of currency he had left into gold at one and a haif per cent. discount, he gets $4,332 50, which, deducted from the $10,000 paid the broker, leaves a total expenditure of $5,567 50, for which he recel was a leeg as the States pay the interest on their bonds, the saug little sum of $3,000 per annum.

If the stocks fall in the New-York market, the Auditor may compel Crossus to spout more stocks or withdraw the bills—if he can. If he prefers to wind up the bank, the bills immediately fall in value, and Crossus, buying them in at a discount, presents them to the Auditor, and receives their full in the sesurities he deposited. The bare statement of this system is enough to expose the outrageous character of the swindle. The result of it is that we have to pay from one to three per cent for exchange on New York when the price of gold here and in New York is the same. A dollar in gold will always buy a dollar of exchange.

a dollar of exchange. ACCOUNTS OF THE HARVEST ON THE CONTINENT.—The last European mail furnishes us with accounts of the crops in these countries where the harvest is terminated. It is only in the north of Italy that the wheat is the condition antiferory in Londards crop is considered satisfactory; in Lombard; it is middling, and in the Provinces of Modens, Parma and Bologua it is indifferent In Venetia results differ in various localities In Venetia results differ in various localities; in Naples the crop is less than was at first expected. The harvest in the Two Castiles and La Mancha, in Spain, has been satisfactory; but in Andalusia the quantity has not equaled expectation. Accounts from Odess say that the wheat crop there will be excellent. In Ireland the harvest will be late, but it is expected to be fully equal to an average crop. an average crop.

Very Posite Liberthee in Illinois,—The town of Dover, in Illinois, was recently visited by an exceedingly polite flash of lightning. Henry Hagan and his hired man were on the point of taking their middey meal in the fields, under a large oak tree, when a violent thunder-shower came up. The lightning descended with the rain, and a flash, striking the tree, shivered several branches, passed between Mr. Hagan and the man, took off the cover of Mr. Hagan's dinner pail for him, and so disappeared, as it were, with a bow, begging the gentlemen to be seated, and help themselves. an average crop.

More American Houses for England.—
Mr. Ten Broeck is not disposed to give it up so. He has just purchased from Mr. B. Atchison Alexander, of Lexington, Ey., two yearlings—one a bay filly, "Annette," by imp. "Scythian," out of "Lexington a" dam; the other a bay colt by "Lexington," out of "Ducatoon," by "Wagner," and out of "Picayune." The price paid for these yearlings was $1,500 each. The filly "Annetie" is to be returned to this country after her racing expeer is over. W. A. Dudley, Est, has also sold to Mr. Ten Broeck his yearling colt "Knight of the Garter," the full brother of "Rurick," for $2,000. Mr. Ten Broeck's man came to this country to see these animals safely to their destination.

GREAT AGRICULTURAL IMPROVEMENT OF NORTH CAROLINA.—Thirty years ago, North Carolina abandoned the growth of cotton, owing to causes not very cleanly defined, but guch, as that the season was too short, the "spring too backward," soil too thin, etc., but has returned to it with vasily increased energy, producing a greater yield in one county how, than in the whole State formerly. And it is making the cotton-growing districts rich, signs of which are seen in the improvement of lands, of buildings, and the general condition of the population. There are already planters who make 1,000 bags, which, at $50 per bag, is $50,000; and ten years ago, the game men did not produce a bale?

SEWING MACHINE lowing in reference to the recent change of proprietorship in the San of the former city:

There are two theories afloat with regard to this unannounced transposition. One is, that the change is only one in name, and not in fact, and that Mr. Church merely represents Mr. Beach, while the latter is the real power behind the throne. The other theory is, that if the change of ownership is bond fide it is the initiative step toward the new religious penny paper whose advent I anounced some months ago. A Mr. Morrison, of Philadelphia, has been for some time anxious "to go his pile" upon the establishment of a newspaper here which shall afford to keep a conscience. He is about to be humored at last, and either the San is to send a new style of orilliancy upon our benighted public, under the auspices of Mr. Morrison's money, or else the rays of religious journalism will seek another outlet, and the capital awaiting this kind of investment find its way into the Daily Messenger, as previously intimated.
